By ARTHUR GRIFFITH

HARPER AND BROTHERS have just published "The Challenge to Isolation, 1937-1940," for the Council on Foreign Relations. This giant volume of nearly 800 pages is authored by William L. Langer and S. Everett Gleason. It sells for $7.50.

Both authors are recognized authoritative historians. Langer is a director of research of the Central Intelligence Agency. He is a former professor of history at Harvard, was chief of the research and analysis branch of the Office of Strategic Services during World War II and later a special assistant to the Secretary of State.

Gleason is deputy executive secretary of the National Security Council. He has a long wartime experience in Washington. Before the war he was associate professor of history at Amherst.
